—Special meeting of Rescue Hook and Ladder company this evening.

—There is very little sickness in the city just now, it being distressingly healthy, so one physician remarked.

—The trial of Albert Geiser is still on trial in the municipal court although it will probably be finished this afternoon.

—Janesville Chapter No. 5, Royal Arch Masons, assemble in regular semi-monthly convocation this evening at Masonic hall.

—Three cars for the Janesville Street Railway company, manufactured at the shops at St. Louis, are completed and ready for shipment.

—Marshall Hogan is now on the look-out for a number of tramps that have been seen around the outskirts of the city during the past few days.

—Miss Mattie M. Benedict, second assistant in the high school room, has been unable to attend her work for a short time past on account of sickness.

—Captain Newman, of the Janesville Guards, also received a check for $100 yesterday, from the managers of the North Chicago Rolling Mills, at Bay View, in recognition of the services of the Guards during the riot.

—C. E. Mosley, who has been dangerously ill at his home in the third ward for the past several weeks, was able to take an hour's ride yesterday, which seemed to have a beneficial effect, and it is now thought he will soon be himself again.

—H. H. Field, Esq., of Milwaukee, one of the attorneys of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, is in the city, called here to help try several suits in the circuit court, the company being a party in each case.

—Mr. and Mrs. Millard Ide wish to tender their thanks to the friends who so thoughtfully sympathized with them in the hour of their bereavement, and especially the singers who assisted at the burial services of their little daughter Ethel.

—Everyone who has ever visited Pontiac Park at Geneva, Lake, knows Lester Porter, and everyone will wish to congratulate him on having just assumed the joys and cares of married life. The summer season at the lake seems to be opening with great cheer.

—Yesterday afternoon the horse of Mrs. Summer Parker took fright at something, while tied in Oak Hill cemetery, and ran away. A light platoon to which the animal was harnessed suffered severely in the run, being completely wrecked, but otherwise no especial damage was done.

—The plant thief has again begun to make trouble. The fourth ward is the scene of operations now and several front yards have already been made to suffer. Suspicion points very strongly to a young woman living in the neighborhood where the trouble has been, and a sharp watch is now being kept on all flower stands with a view to obtaining more positive proof of her guilt.

—The Racine Journal: Two fifth ward women indulged in a novel contest yesterday afternoon, that of obeying gum. They consumed twenty-five sticks of spruce gum, one moving her jaws up and down six thousand times in one hour, while the other covered five thousand and twelve. To-day they are suffering with sore jaws and awfully afraid the event will get in the papers.

—The meeting of the Wisconsin horse breeders' association was held at Milwaukee Tuesday. John L. Mitchell, of Milwaukee, was elected president, J. I. Case, of Racine, vice president, Frank L. Smith, of Janesville, secretary, E. H. Brodhead, Milwaukee, treasurer. Arrangements will be made for a four days' meeting between August 17th and 24th. The place of meeting has not been decided upon as yet.

—Captain Alex. Buchholz has made definite arrangements regarding the use of his new bath house near the upper railroad bridge, North Main street. The bath house will be open all hours of the day and evening. On Tuesdays the establishment will be reserved for the exclusive use of the ladies. Captain Buchholz has arranged that on Tuesdays a flag will be displayed on the bath house which will be visible in nearly every direction, and will be taken as a warning that no gentleman will be allowed on that day. The house is provided with all the conveniences, and will no doubt be well patronized by the public.

—The twelfth day of June is to be field day at Beloit college. The usual programme will be presented, one of the principal attractions being the ball game between the Janesville and the Beloit college nines. The Janesvilles have been organized only a short time but they have already shown considerable strength. Among the players are Fred Sperry, Frank Webster, Frank Hoskins, George Cummings and several other young men accustomed to swinging the willow or chasing the leather covered sphere. In their practice games they have made some very good records and although it is not yet settled as to who will fill each position, there is no doubt but what Beloit will have a strong club to play against.

—The building that has just been put up by J. R. Bleasdale contains so many novel features that it is well worth mentioning. The upper floors are fitted up in four-room flats, very conveniently arranged with closets, and two stairways from each floor. If desired, these flats can be changed to suites of two rooms each, and will then be very desirable apartments for one or two persons who wish to take their meals out. The store proper is large and well lighted, and will be an excellent location for a retail business. When waterworks are put in, Mr. Bleasdale intend to have the service extended through the building, but until then soft water will be supplied to the tenants from a three hundred gallon stone cistern in the cellar, and a drive well will furnish an abundant supply of hard water. The carpenter work was done by G. K. Colling, the architect and builder of this city, a sufficient guarantee that everything is first class. The building is a fine one and is a great improvement over the old order of things on West Milwaukee street.

ALBANY.

Something of Her Past, Present and Future.

A Home-like Town of Pleasant Associations and Active Industries.

The Beauties of the Sugar River as Viewed From the Steamer "Mikado."

A Fair Holiday.

The bright sunshine of a pleasant May day presents the miniature city of Albany in the light of a thrifty, enterprising town of more than ordinary importance, situated on the banks of Sugar river with its business center compact and substantial, and with a liberal sprinkling of fine residences dotting the hills and scattered along either shore of the river, the occasional visitor is impressed with the ideal that the little city on the border of Green county possesses many attractions, and in her modest, unobtrusive way is gradually working towards the front. Albany is peculiar in some respects, but her peculiarities are of such a character as to strengthen rather than diminish her attractive features. But few of any towns in the northwest are so home-like in appearance or make up. From the first log cabin, erected in 1835 by Mr. S. F. Nichols, followed by mills and other improvements added a year later with which Mr. E. O. Pond was identified, and still more extensive enterprises early in the fifties, introducing the Warren brothers, the town gradually developed, bearing the impress at every turn of these three pioneer workers, whose descendants by marriage and intermarriage are many of them still found at the old homestead. Of the original stock Eugene and Leonard Warren still reside in Albany. These gentlemen, with their brother, Dr. J. H. Warren, of this city, comprise what is known as the Western Stage Company, controlling more miles of overland mail service than any other contractors in the country.

In a recent address delivered by Mr. H. B. Jones, one of the retired early settlers, Dr. Warren is pronounced the "Moses of Albany." The applause with which this compliment was received by the audience indicated that the speaker expressed a popular sentiment. Albany can produce more old settlers to the square foot than any town of a thousand inhabitants in the country. The same old miller, after thirty-two years of constant service, continues

"To weigh the wheat and grind the corn, While mill and miller grow old together."

In 1808 the town suffered a heavy loss as the result of high water, and the fire of 1833 demolished several of the best business blocks; but to-day Milwaukee brick has succeeded the frame structures destroyed, giving the place a metropolitan air. Until the advent of the railroad in 1850, nothing occurred to thoroughly arouse the dormant energies of her good-natured and contented people; but the echo of the steam whistle inspired new life and awakened new ambitions. A dozen dwellings now in process of building, with many more in prospect, indicate an era of prosperity which is little to continue for years to come. As a shipping point Albany surpasses Brodhead or Monroe, influencing much of the country trade which was formerly directed to other channels. This gives to her business houses substantial aid and a reputation for reliability which they enjoy to a rare degree.

The town is favored with an excellent graded school, under the efficient management of Professor Bouham. Two first class hotels, the Nichols house, with S. S. Hill as proprietor, and the Central, owned and managed by Mr. S. H. Flint, furnish ample accommodations to the traveling public, and add much to the attractions of the place.

The Albany woolen mill has long been recognized as a permanent fixture. This property has recently been leased for a term of years by Mr. Frank Smith, a practical manufacturer from Springfield, Mass. Modern machinery has been added, and the mill is being operated with a full force night and day, producing a very desirable line of hannels, yarns, and ladies' dress goods.

One of the latest improvements noticed is a cheese factory under the management of Mr. Edward Devereaux, with the product of a thousand cows. This factory is now producing a car load of cheese every twenty days.

Green's tobacco warehouse, one of the largest and best equipped in the northwest, is located here and Mr. F. C. Green, the proprietor, has already paid out $100,000 on the crop of 1885. A lively stable employing twenty-one horses and thoroughly equipped, owned and managed by Messrs. Mitchell & Son, supplies overland transportation and pleasure for the benefit of the town. Albany has always enjoyed the reputation of good morals. In 1833 the dry rock prohibition apostle Colonel Elsworth succeeded in striking the town and surrounding country from center to circumference, producing a wave of temperance sentiment whose influence has been more enduring than the principles professed by the enthusiastic exponent. The Vindicator, a prohibition journal owned and controlled by a stock company, composed of temperance workers, continues to voice the doctrines of the prohibition movement; while the Journal, edited by the proprietor, Mr. John E. Bartlett, is recognized as more conservative but equally pronounced on all vital questions. Mr. Bartlett is an old-time printer and enjoys the reputation of producing a clean, well printed paper. His efforts to please his many patrons are fully appreciated by the good people of Albany.

The sounding of a steamboat whistle reminds the writer of an excursion "up the river," to celebrate the advent of the "Mikado," built, equipped and manned by Capt. G. L. Holiday. The outside measurement of the little side-wheel steamer is 13½ feet beam by 40 feet in length. A Willard's high speed engine and a Clyde steel 12-horse power horizontal boiler supply the motive power. The boat is built for service, and well adapted to the meandering current of the Sugar river. ALBANY.

Something of Her Past, Present and Future.

A Home-like Town of Pleasant Associations and Active Industries.

The Beauties of the Sugar River as Viewed From the Steamer "Mikado."

A Fair Holiday.

The bright sunshine of a pleasant May day presents the miniature city of Albany in the light of a thrifty, enterprising town of more than ordinary importance, situated on the banks of Sugar river with its business center compact and substantial, and with a liberal sprinkling of fine residences dotting the hills and scattered along either shore of the river, the occasional visitor is impressed with the ideal that the little city on the border of Green county possesses many attractions, and in her modest, unobtrusive way is gradually working towards the front. Albany is peculiar in some respects, but her peculiarities are of such a character as to strengthen rather than diminish her attractive features. But few of any towns in the northwest are so home-like in appearance or make up. From the first log cabin, erected in 1835 by Mr. S. F. Nichols, followed by mills and other improvements added a year later with which Mr. E. O. Pond was identified, and still more extensive enterprises early in the fifties, introducing the Warren brothers, the town gradually developed, bearing the impress at every turn of these three pioneer workers, whose descendants by marriage and intermarriage are many of them still found at the old homestead. Of the original stock Eugene and Leonard Warren still reside in Albany. These gentlemen, with their brother, Dr. J. H. Warren, of this city, comprise what is known as the Western Stage Company, controlling more miles of overland mail service than any other contractors in the country.

In a recent address delivered by Mr. H. B. Jones, one of the retired early settlers, Dr. Warren is pronounced the "Moses of Albany." The applause with which this compliment was received by the audience indicated that the speaker expressed a popular sentiment. Albany can produce more old settlers to the square foot than any town of a thousand inhabitants in the country. The same old miller, after thirty-two years of constant service, continues

"To weigh the wheat and grind the corn, While mill and miller grow old together."

In 1808 the town suffered a heavy loss as the result of high water, and the fire of 1833 demolished several of the best business blocks; but to-day Milwaukee brick has succeeded the frame structures destroyed, giving the place a metropolitan air. Until the advent of the railroad in 1850, nothing occurred to thoroughly arouse the dormant energies of her good-natured and contented people; but the echo of the steam whistle inspired new life and awakened new ambitions. A dozen dwellings now in process of building, with many more in prospect, indicate an era of prosperity which is little to continue for years to come. As a shipping point Albany surpasses Brodhead or Monroe, influencing much of the country trade which was formerly directed to other channels. This gives to her business houses substantial aid and a reputation for reliability which they enjoy to a rare degree.

The town is favored with an excellent graded school, under the efficient management of Professor Bouham. Two first class hotels, the Nichols house, with S. S. Hill as proprietor, and the Central, owned and managed by Mr. S. H. Flint, furnish ample accommodations to the traveling public, and add much to the attractions of the place.

The Albany woolen mill has long been recognized as a permanent fixture. This property has recently been leased for a term of years by Mr. Frank Smith, a practical manufacturer from Springfield, Mass. Modern machinery has been added, and the mill is being operated with a full force night and day, producing a very desirable line of hannels, yarns, and ladies' dress goods.

One of the latest improvements noticed is a cheese factory under the management of Mr. Edward Devereaux, with the product of a thousand cows. This factory is now producing a car load of cheese every twenty days.

Green's tobacco warehouse, one of the largest and best equipped in the northwest, is located here and Mr. F. C. Green, the proprietor, has already paid out $100,000 on the crop of 1885. A lively stable employing twenty-one horses and thoroughly equipped, owned and managed by Messrs. Mitchell & Son, supplies overland transportation and pleasure for the benefit of the town.
